

ED INGE FREED BY JUDGE ON PLEA OF RELATIONSHIP TO MAYOR BAKER

Judge Crawford Rules That Mayor
Had No Legal Right to Sentence
Inge to County Roads—
Sheriff Orders Man Put Back in Jail.

On the grounds of relationship within the fourth degree between Mayor Joe Baker and Ed Inge, the Probate Judge, Hon. A. C. Crawford, today freed the latter from labor on the county roads.

No sooner had the judge announced his decision than Sheriff Ben O. Hay told his deputies to take Inge and put him back in the county jail. The Sheriff, turning to Solicitor T. H. Crawford, told him to obtain a new warrant charging the former defendant with an attempt to escape or break jail.

Ernest H. Hill obtained freedom for Inge on a new point that was not passed upon by Chancellor W. R. Chapman, of the Southeastern Chancery Division, who a few days ago, denied a writ seeking to obtain the release of Inge. The question of relationship figured solely in the hearing before Judge Crawford.

Mayor's Decision Illegal.

Lawyer Hill announced that he would withdraw every allegation, excepting that of relationship, his plea being that Mayor Joe Baker, who tried and sentenced Ed Inge to the county roads, was related within the fourth degree, and that consequently the proceeding was illegal, unless the Mayor had obtained the expressed consent of the defendant to the procedure.

Mayor Joe Baker, when placed upon the stand, testified that if he asked Inge if he objected to the Dothan Mayor sitting in the case, that he did not recollect it. Several witnesses who heard the original trial in Mayor's court, testified that they did not hear the Mayor ask the defendant if he had any objections.

Appeal Withdrawn.

The habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Crawford came as a great surprise, as the public opinion was an appeal from the decision of Chancellor Chapman had been taken to the State Supreme Court. It was learned that the case had been appealed to the State Supreme Court, but that before the hearing before Judge Crawford, the appeal had been withdrawn by counsel for the defendant.

In the hearing today, the State was represented by County Solicitor T. H. Crawford who argued his case ably. The arguments of the lawyers seemed thorough and lengthy. The defense was represented by Ernest H. Hill.

Wife Consols Husband.

Mrs. Ed Inge, the wife of the defendant, was a conspicuous figure in the court room. She sat by her husband and looked at his hands which, it is said, have blisters caused by two days of laboring under the direction of Superintendent McEachin, of the county road working crew, who sat at the left of the defendant. The eyelids of Mrs. Inge were reddened as if she had been weeping. During the hearing she talked in whispers to her husband, evidently sympathizing with him and offering that consolation which a man's wife ordinarily proffers when he is in trouble.

Several Dothan lawyers, not interested in the case, have expressed their private opinions that Judge Crawford acted legally in discharging Inge.

MEETING POSTPONED.

The meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to have been held Friday night, has been postponed until next week.

CASE CONTINUED.

The case against M. L. Robinson, colored, charged with doing business without a license, was continued in Mayor's court today.

School Children Suffer

It is a conceded fact that many naturally bright children are backward in their studies because their sight is poor. Parents cannot always detect the trouble and for that reason school children's eyes should be examined by Dr. Masrow and the proper glasses may overcome the trouble. He invites you to bring your children and consult him.

CROSS EYES CAN BE STRAIGHTENED.

Dr. Masrow makes a specialty of straightening cross-eyes if under 15 years, with his scientific, fitting glasses. He has straightened a great many in the last 22 years.

Dr. Masrow can be seen in his Dothan office Thursday, Friday and Saturday, over the Cash Drug Store.

CARRYING THE WELL-KNOWN GERMAN PATRIOTISM TOO FAR.

E. W. Howe's Monthly.

One of the most disgusting habits of men is that they always stand by their prejudices, right or wrong. If a man belongs to a lodge, and it is convicted of crime or folly, he does not quit it, but defends it, and will go to any extent in fighting for it.

The German army, in invading Belgium, committed atrocities that shocked the civilized world, and the American newspapers printed sharp criticisms. There is in New York a tiresome German-American named Herman Ridder, and he promptly came to the defense of his countrymen. The burning of Louvain, Mr. Ridder said, was justified; so was the dropping of bombs on Antwerp, and the killing of women and children sleeping quietly in their beds.

I have lost the editorial printed by Mr. Ridder, being an extremely careless man, but I remember it said the injured or murdered Belgians were "where they had no business to be."

They were at home, in their country; surely it is carrying the well-known German patriotism too far to say these Belgians had no right in their own country and in their own homes.

The Germans had no more right in Belgium than has an armed burglar a right to be in your house between two and three o'clock in the morning, having admitted himself by means of a jimmy without your knowledge or consent.

I like the German-Americans, but they make too much of their love of "the Fatherland" and Rhine wine. If Herman Ridder is loving his country so much, why is he living in New York? Why is he not serving in the ranks of the German army now dedicated to the work of cutting the throats of the French and English?

I sincerely admire the Germans, in a capable, polite and intelligent people, but in the present war I hope they will be whipped to their knees. They need a big whipping because they permitted their emperor to force them to war. A secret ballot taken before the declaration of war would have shown seven out of ten of the decent Germans against war.

The Germans deserve humiliation and defeat for submitting to the impudent rule of their War Lord, a War Crazy man. Civilization, popular rights and every decent principle are crying out for a big whipping for the German bully. The German people will be greater because of a good whipping. They are old men and boys at home should be in the wrong in the present war, engage in rioting, and demand and wrong should never triumph. I pray, and a cessation of the great hope the Germans will receive such out human butchery in history, it is hoped that in future there will be a strike in the interest of decency and humanity; in the and in every other German town, when a foolish war is talked of. When the German Emperor declared war, unfairly, impudently and unbecomingly, the people should have said to him:

"You have declared war without consulting us. Now you fight it without our help."

That would have made Germany greater than it has ever been. The world would have acclaimed this real rule of the people; this downfall of the world's most mischievous War Hogg.

Suppose that in the popular uprising against war, a thousand or ten thousand German aristocrats had been shot with decency and order. That would have been better than the loss of a million or more German artisans, farmers and professional men on the plains of Belgium and France; that would have been better than the universal detestation now attaching to the Germans war party the world over.

Drunkness, adultery, thievery, rape, are less wicked and detestable than the war now raging in Europe. I hope they will become so hot and continue so long, that the word "war" in future will look as mean in dictionaries as treason, incendiary, assassination, white slavery and cuckold.

I like union labor men because I belong in their crowd and know little about any other, but a whipping such as Germany should receive at the hands of the allies, would do union labor and the world good. They are becoming too impudent; they quarrel too easily; they are asking too much; the followers submit too readily to ambitious, greedy and unscrupulous leaders.

The world needs to have the nonsense knocked out of it. It is drunk with its own importance, and should sober up. I hope hell will be raised until the people are finally convinced that they do not like it.

If men rebel at working eight hours a day at safe and agreeable tasks, why do they not rebel at being drafted as soldiers in time of war, at sixteen dollars a month?

I hear every day of men burning the property of employers who have been kind and liberal, but there are millions of men under arms in the present war in Europe, and the papers say the men were so anxious to enlist that there was rioting because more recruiting offices were not opened.

The soldiers who do the heavy and dirty work in the army; who occupy the dangerous positions when there is fighting, and act as servants for the officers when there is peace, do not average sixteen dollars a month each. They are neglecting important affairs at home, and running the risk of losing their lives.

Yet they do not strike. They have no quarrel with the men they are murdering; they have not been injured by the people whose country they are invading; and whose property they are destroying. Yet they keep up the work of murder and destruction, and do not strike.

The German leaders and officers who brought on the war without good excuse, have wronged the German men in the ranks more than the English or French have ever wronged them, or ever will wrong them. Yet they do not strike.

If the men in the ranks in the present war should strike, and shoot a lot of their officers and leaders, instead of shooting a lot of men who have never injured them; if the men in the present war, engage in rioting, and demand and wrong should never triumph. I pray, and a cessation of the great hope the Germans will receive such out human butchery in history, it is hoped that in future there will be a strike in the interest of decency and humanity; in the

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANITA CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your medicine I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my housework now, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicine."—Mrs. CHARLES ROWE, R.F.D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Interest of the people, and in the interest of all the countries represented; it would be a case where rioting was justified, and accomplished good.

War is not only horrible: it is the most idiotic, wasteful and barbaric thing in which men engage. It is a case of sober men acting like men crazed with whiskey; a case of sane men acting insane, and destroying their own property and cutting their own throats. Only statesmen and fools ever justify or apologize for war. When millions of men are forced to quit their homes and occupations, and engage in murder and riot, it is a glaring and undisputed case of injustice to the people.

It is not an injustice to offer men safe and agreeable work at $4.27 per day, which were the conditions which brought on the recent Colorado war, but it is injustice to force men to quit such positions, and work for sixteen dollars a month, in addition to acting as targets for good marksmen carrying modern rifles.

I hope that every King, Prince, Count, Lord, Duke and other titled persons in the present war will be shot down in a strike brought by the privates, and that this strike will end the bloody business.

"Patriotism" is a good word; it is a disgrace to use it in connection with war.

The poorest of all chickens is the Game Rooster; the poorest of all dogs is the Bull Dog. My boy Eugene owns a Chesapeake Bay spaniel, a hunting dog that can whip any bull dog in Atchison or its vicinity. And I don't believe there is a bull dog in this vicinity he hasn't whipped. I don't like fighting but it is generally remarked that the Atchison bull dogs are the most peaceful lot of bull dogs to be found on the face of the earth. Bull dogs everywhere need a first class whipping; if only death will cause them to quit fighting, then let us exclaim with the prophet, "O, death where is thy sting."

HAZING.

A student has just returned from college abroad, on account of being hazed. In the first place the fathers of those who perpetrated the outrage, should be indicted by the grand jury (if such is possible) and be fined heavily and sentenced to penal servitude, for turning loose on an innocent public such outlaws as the sons of whom they have sent to college. Boys under age, are responsible to their fathers, and are acting as agents for them. If the abominable and detestable father is unable to control or civilize his son, he can turn him over to the proper authorities, and so rid the public of a standing menace. In the event no criminal action could be had against the fathers, then let a civil suit for damages against them be prosecuted to that extent that will convert them from the error of their way. A serious offense deserves heroic treatment, and this infernal hazing should be stopped if it takes a cat o' nine tails to do it. This young gentleman has been reared in a Christian home by Christian parents, and his withdrawal from the college should be a fearful and lasting warning to them in charge to institute a reform instantly or else shut up shop and go home.

Antwerp During The Siege

(Special Dispatch by the International News Service.)

Antwerp, Belgium, Oct. 8.—Life here does not make a vast deal of difference to the burghers of Antwerp. So long as there is food enough and not too many shells for them runs very much in its usual course and will probably do so for some time.

It is too much to hope that the enemy will refrain from pelting the town with shells and confining their efforts to the fortifications. But shells are no more terrifying and probably less destructive than the bombs which we have had dropped on our heads from a Zeppelin airship on two occasions, and nobody minds them in the least now.

Even on the last occasion, when the city was visited in this manner, although this was only the second experience of the sort, people living round the district where the bombs fell came out long before the airship had departed, and watched other bombs falling not far away. Actually a cordon of police and soldiers had to be formed to keep them back.

In the streets the daily scene does not change a great deal. There are slightly fewer people to be seen since the refugees were sent away, but shops and cafes still do a brisk business. After eight o'clock matters are somewhat different. All lights are out, and only candles burn behind curtain windows. It is then, if ever, that thoughts turn to Zeppelins, not fearfully, but the dark hours encourage such thoughts and it is not fear but simple precaution which has caused cellars to be cleared and mattresses placed therein.

It must not be thought that there is nothing unusual in the air. Somehow it is difficult to be quite as gay as usual. It is almost certain that the man or woman you are sitting next to can tell you a story of personal tragedy. One morning I addressed four people in the Cafe Metropole. Three of them were direct and dire sufferers. One, a nobleman, told me without a word of complaint, how his chateau near Liege had been razed by the Belgians to clear the way for the fire of the heavy guns, how all the horses in his racing stud had been requisitioned, how, through his ruined tenants' inability to pay any rent for two or three years, his income was gone. He asked me anxiously whether, if he put the wreck of his fortunes, namely, the family plate, in a big chest, he would be allowed to take it into England.

A second man described how his dearest friend, a youth of 20, had been tied to a tree by German officers, and told he would be shot. First, however, they wanted dinner, and dined around the tree, taunting their victim with offers of champagne till they had finished their repast. Then they shot him. The women of Antwerp become more wonderful every day. While their men live they comfort and cheer them, when they are dead they put the Red Cross band on their mourning and still their grief to minister to the dear ones of others.

There is a woman living in my hotel whose husband was a captain of infantry. While he was away on duty she would sit sewing in the salon with a sorrowing face as she wondered what was happening to her husband out in the firing line. When she heard his step the gloom went and the smile and the joke—it was easy to know with what an effort—replaced it. The soldier gone, the weary forehead descended again. After Saturday's fight at Termonde she came down in deepest black. This morning I saw a Red Cross on her sleeve. This is no exception; that captain's wife has a thousand peers in Antwerp.

Of course, in spite of unconcern with regard to bombs and shells, the only topic of conversation is, "How long will the Germans take to get in?" Whatever General Dufour, the military governor and the general staff think they keep it to themselves, but they naturally spend a good deal of time planning precautions. We hear occasionally the sound of distant explosions; the rappers are blowing up the villas around the environs to clear the path for the guns of the forts.

Men labor ceaselessly at the uncompleted forts. Unfortunately these latter will not be able to do all that their designers meant them to. They were to have been armed with the great guns of Krupp, but that wily gentleman, just in the case of Namur, delayed delivery again and again. It was too late, which of course, is another indication of German intentions with regard to Belgium in the event of war. So some of the Antwerp forts, more especially on the south and west, are still incomplete, and the enemy knows this.

Hence the fight at Termonde, which by the way, did not end by any means to his satisfaction. It is possible now to realize what took place in this combat. All the Belgian soldiers who were at Termonde say they were surprised, by how many Germans it is not definitely known, but probably the number was about 30,000. There were about 7,000 Belgians, and they had to retire after a stiff fight, then having been reinforced, they returned to the fray and the Germans, themselves surprised, had to retire when they had come. What they did achieve, however, was to cut Antwerp off from Ostend.

Meanwhile other German troops were coming up from between Termonde and Malines, and ran into some forts, of which they had misjudged the position. With great loss they fell back and then the defenders played another winning card—they flooded the country by opening the dykes, and the retreating Germans were caught. Their artillery was almost all lost and the soldiers who failed to get out of the inundated area before the water rose too high had to take to the houses and tree tops, whence they were later gathered in as prisoners by the Belgians. They were all very angry indeed at such an undignified end. How many men they lost cannot be exactly stated. Officially, 3,000 were killed, but, with wounded and prisoners, their loss must have been something like 4,000. A Belgian officer told me his men ambushed a German battalion in a wood and killed 450 of them. I lieutenant of this battalion—one of the 21st regiment of infantry—who was taken wounded to Antwerp said that only three of his company escaped.

WAR AND MOVING PICTURES. By George Dufresne. (Special Dispatch by the International News Service.) Paris, Oct. 8.—The war in Europe is playing havoc with the moving picture business. In all parts of the continent movie operators were forced to flee for their lives and in most instances they left their machines and many valuable reels behind them.

Then too, the moving picture concerns of Paris and other French cities have been paralyzed by the war. Their actors have been called to the colors and have gone to the front. There are left behind only the women employees of the companies. These are good actresses and expert operators of the camera, but they cannot impersonate men and so the great French movie industry is at a standstill.

With only women left, the firms cannot make the military, historical, serious and comic reels that have for years delighted audiences all over the world and particularly in America.

As far war pictures, that is a dead end matter. Though announced by the war offices of Germany, England, France, Russia and Austria and Belgium that no movie artists will be allowed with any of the armies in the field, reels of the fighting will be turned out in America by the mile.

It is a well known fact that moving pictures of the Boer War were not seen for seven years after that conflict and then they were turned out by American movie concerns with such an accuracy and resemblance to the real thing, that the films were sent to England and viewed there by enthusiastic thousands.

many of whom were veterans of the Boer War. The latter said that the pictures were wonderful in their counterfeit presentation of the actual fighting.

The moving picture company in question has in its possession thousands of military uniforms of every great power, weapons of all kinds, battle flags, etc. In making the Boer War pictures it employed two thousand men. It is to be expected that a dozen or more moving picture makers in the United States have similar resources, and it is a certainty that as soon as anything like detailed descriptions of the fighting in Europe are available for the newspapers, films of the battles will begin to be seen in all the moving picture theatres.
